No parking ticket hike ... for now

- Service Alberta defers $15 licence-plate queries until Sept.
- Fee still imminent, Service Alberta spokesperson says

Motorists who are in the habit of getting parking tickets may be off the hook for an increased price — for now.

Service Alberta announced Thursday they will delay a $15 fee for licence-plate queries.

"We have listened to the concerns of municipalities and police agencies and they asked us to defer until Sept. 1, and that's what we're doing," said Sharon Lopatka, spokesperson for Service Alberta. "It's giving municipalities time to adjust to the search fee."

The City of Edmonton said parking tickets would likely increase by $25 to help cover an estimated $10 million in lost revenue. The bylaw was supposed to come before city council this month.

"If they've decided to delay it, I don't think that we can, in good conscience, consider approving a $25 charge," said Coun. Tony Caterina.

Sgt. Tony Simioni, president of the Edmonton Police Association, said the fee could have an impact on crime control and manpower if it comes out of the policing budget.

"Not only should they delay it, they should get rid of it altogether," he said Thursday.

Todd Burge, manager of the city's corporate-finance branch, said an increase to parking fines could help offset the impact on police but that talks will need to occur with the province prior to any decisions being made.

Refunds in Calgary

- Service Alberta said all fees previously thought owed are going to be wiped out.
- The Calgary Parking Authority had already begun charging an extra $15 for parking tickets.
- A motion is scheduled to come before Calgary city council this month to change the fee schedule and partially reimburse roughly 10,000 tickets.

Three Hills to appeal Guzoo ruling

In the face of one of its major attractions facing closure, the Three Hills mayor is planning a future for the town he hopes will include Guzoo.

"My feeling is that of disappointment," said Tim Shearlaw.

The mayor of the town 250 kilometres from Edmonton said he thought when the conditional permit was issued April 1, owner Lynn Gustafson would be told changes to make and comply.

Instead, the town — which sees a number of visitors a year from Guzoo traffic — learned with everybody else Wednesday results of a third-party review had led Sustainable Resource Development to revoke Guzoo's licence.

He plans to discuss options for the zoo with Gustafson over the weekend.

He said the town is "in shock," and he intends to band with nearby municipalities in the fight.

With the fates of an estimated 400 animals in the air, groups are coming forward offering the safe transport of Guzoo's threatened residents.

Terra Johnston, executive director of the Alberta SPCA, said the society's role has become one of protector during the roadside zoo's decommission process.

"We have a member there to ensure the ani-

Julie Woodyer, campaigns director with watchdog Zoocheck Canada, calls the province's move to close Guzoo "a big, big step in its history."

Next, new homes will be needed and Zoocheck is prepared to foot the bill.

"He will be losing the controlled species, he has no say in that," said Woodyer.

Those upset with public money being used for a new downtown arena will gather in Churchill Square on Sunday.

Police offer free noise-level testing

► EPS trained more officers for motorcycle test; plan to raise enforcement

Before the Edmonton Police Service revs up its second summer of enforcement on noisy motorcycles, motorists are invited to have their bikes tested.

"If you're concerned about your motorcycle and how much noise it's emitting, we'll be happy to test your vehicle and let you know how you fare," said Const. Eric Theuser with the EPS traffic section.

Trained officers test with a SAE J2825, developed by the Society of Automotive Engineers and endorsed by the Motorcycle and Moped Industry Council.

The city introduced its motorcycle-noise bylaw July 1, 2010 and handed out 115 tickets last year.

U2 concert goers couldn't make the call

► City says crowd, number of cellphones 'overloads the system' ► Service providers investing in infrastructure

Concert-goers wanting to share the U2 hype on Wednesday night with fans not in attendance were unable to do so.

Many cellphones weren't working. While some assumed it was a block from the band, it seems the crowd itself was to blame.

"With so many cellphones on site (and) in use, then virtually no cellphones work," said Brent McFarlane, supervisor of major events and operations at the stadium. "Even a crowd of 40,000, it overloads the system."

Carly McKee made the trip from Calgary to see the show with her family. "The worst was when my mom (and) sister tried

Contributing factors

► Brent McFarlane said the amount of concrete in and around the stadium may also have an effect on cell service.

► The lack of service has happened at other major events, said McFarlane, including last year's Grey Cup.

► Shawn Hall, with Telus, said a combination of checking the hockey score and a desire to share the concert through social media likely contributed to the network's problems.

to call my brother so he could hear some of the songs and the calls kept failing," she said.

Kate Hamilton didn't try to make calls, but couldn't manage to get her BlackBerry to surf the internet or text.

Nicole Bratko didn't attend, but had trouble picking up her sister and her boyfriend afterward.

"I could never reach either of them to tell them where I was parked," she said. "So frustrating."

McFarlane said relief could be coming, as service providers Telus and Bell are attempting to improve the situation.

"We are investing $650 million in Alberta, a lot of that on wireless sites," said Telus' Shawn Hall, adding about 80 of the sites will be in the Edmonton area. "That will help in the future."

Brule picks up unlikely hitchhiker — Bono

Oilers centre Gilbert Brule and his girlfriend were driving in West Vancouver, B.C., on Tuesday when they happened upon an unusual hitchhiker — U2 frontman Bono.

"I like people who play ice hockey. They stop for hitchhikers. I know this from experience," Bono told the crowd at Edmonton's Commonwealth Stadium for U2's concert Wednesday night.

"I was hitchhiking in Vancouver yesterday, actually I was! And this guy and his girlfriend picked me up. He was cool, an ice hockey player, his name was Gilbert Brule as it happens, I'm so grateful I've decided I want to be Gilbert Brule."

With hockey on his mind, Bono compared his bandmates to former Oiler greats, calling The Edge, "The Wayne Gretzky of U2."

Bros hope road trip ends in Canucks tix

Canucks fans in Vancouver weren't the only ones celebrating when the team sealed a win in the first game of the Stanley Cup finals on Wednesday. Jason Sloychuk was cheering the team on from Cold Lake, where he works in the oilfield industry.

Jason and his brother, Jeff, who lives in Edmonton, are embarking on a trip west in an attempt to get into the doors of Rogers Arena for the second game of the best-of-seven series.

"We're hoping to get tickets," said Jason. "If not, have fun and enjoy the atmosphere."

$1,900 The average price some Canucks season ticket holders were selling each seat for before tickets went on sale to the general public.

Jason finished work bright and early Friday morning, and the two will leave early Saturday.

"I think it's worth it," said Jeff, who was willing to fork out between $200 and $500 for a standing room spot during the Oilers' run in 2006. "With scalpers and that, you never know what you'll end up with."

About a dozen rockets were fired at HMCS Charlottetown off the coast of Libya early Monday.

Crew members aboard the Halifax-based ship witnessed the BM-21 rockets fired in their direction. None of the rockets struck the Charlottetown and there were no casualties.

Cmdr. Craig Skjerpen said the rockets were rapid-fired from a truck on shore. The ship has been primarily stationed outside the Libyan port city of Misrata for several weeks. Skjerpen said the ship was out of range of the rockets, but they came within about 900 metres.

"It's a very inaccurate weapon with a certain range. We were outside of that range but they were able to get close," he said.

The ship was sailing away from shore and continued on course after the attack. The crew were surprised, but they reacted quickly, Skjerpen said.

The ship didn't fire back because the weapons systems aren't tasked to find small targets on shore.

In most cases, the ship forwards the information so that NATO fighter jets take out the threat. A NATO air strike didn't occur in this incident.

It was a closer call than the May 12 attack on the ship when large-calibre machine-gun fire spat at them from small attack boats. That was at night when the shooters couldn't see the ship.

"They're really trying to push the (NATO) ships back from the coast because our presence here stops them from being able to attack the port," Skjerpen said.

► Conservative MP Andrew Scheer is seen with his son Henry prior to being elected as the new speaker of the House of Commons on Thursday.

New speaker in the House

► Eight candidates had five minutes to make a stump speech to the Commons ► Campaigns included free ice cream and Starbucks offerings

Conservative MP Andrew Scheer has been elected Speaker of the House of Commons.

The Saskatchewan politician beat out seven other candidates for the position, including six other Tories.

The race came down to a sixth ballot between Scheer and New Democrat MP Denise Savoie — the only woman in the running. Scheer won, supported by the Conservative majority.

The Speaker's job comes with a $233,000 salary, a car and driver, country estate, parliamentary apartment and considerable power.

In 2005, former Speaker Peter Milliken cast a tie-breaking ballot that saved the Paul Martin government from defeat on a budget vote.

This spring, he ruled that there were grounds to find the Harper government in contempt of Parliament — a judgment that helped trigger the May 2 election. He also cast the tie-breaker in a contentious vote on same-sex marriage.

Scheer, a deputy speaker in the last Parliament, was considered the front-runner for the position.

"I have heard some feedback about my age," said the 32-year-old father of four, to laughter. "I know I am getting quite old now."

This was the first order of business for the 41st session of Parliament.

Assuming a payment increase of $10.00 each year. Calculation results are approximations and for information purposes only. The calculations assume all payments are made when due and that no prepayment penalties will apply to the increased payment amounts. Calculations assume that the fixed and variable interest rates would remain constant over the entire amortization period, but actual interest rates may vary over the amortization period. Calculations assume that the selected mortgage repayment option will continue unchanged until the mortgage is fully repaid, but actual selected repayment plans may vary.

► Man who kidnapped, raped girl over 18 years sentenced to 431 years

A serial sex offender was ordered Thursday to spend the rest of his life in prison after the California woman he kidnapped, raped and held captive for 18 years said he and his wife-accomplice had stolen her life.

Victim Jaycee Dugard was 11 when she was abducted by Phillip and Nancy Garrido as her stepfather watched her walk toward a school bus. She gave birth to two daughters fathered by Garrido while he held her in a secret backyard compound.

Garrido, who was on parole for a 1976 rape when Dugard was abducted, pleaded guilty to kidnapping and 13 sexual assault charges. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Thailand to ban Buddha tattoos?

Thailand's Culture Ministry says foreign tourists should be barred from getting Buddhist tattoos while visiting because the practice is culturally insensitive.

Culture Minister Niphit Intharasombat said in a statement that his ministry has been receiving complaints from residents that tattoo parlours are etching sacred images of Buddha and other religious images onto the skin of non-Buddhist visitors.

Thailand is mostly Buddhist, and Buddha statues and images are considered sacred objects of worship. Millions of foreigners visit the nation annually.

Niphit said his ministry had called on tattoo parlours nationwide to halt the activity. According to the country's government news agency, NNT, he also asked provincial governors to "inspect tattoo studios and seek their co-operation."

Canada Post on strike

- ▶ Proposed changes to sick leave a key sticking point for union
- ▶ Winnipeg workers take to picket line ▶ Strike of 1997 lasted two weeks

Canada Post workers are walking off the job.

About 150 workers in Winnipeg have taken to the picket line for the first in a series of rotating 24-hour strikes.

The Canadian Union of Postal Workers announced plans to strike earlier on Thursday after a last-ditch attempt by the Crown Corporation failed to head off job action.

The union is hoping the strike will encourage management to return to the bargaining table with a proposal that meets the needs of its members.

CUP-W says it expects to meet senior post office management on Friday.

The union says it picked Winnipeg as the first rotating strike location because it was the first city to feel the impact of Canada Post's modernization program.

Canada Post has said it needs to address labour costs.

It notes the letter-mail business has fallen by more than 17 per cent since 2006 due to digital communications.

Businesses and charities have been preparing for a big financial hit because of the postal strike, while rival courier services have been making plans to accommodate a potential increase in customers.

Dan Kelly of the Canadian Federation of Independent Business estimates the postal strike will cost small businesses between $200 to $250 daily.

Marketing 'Jobless Paddy'

► More than 50,000 people, mostly university graduates, are forecast to leave Ireland by the end of the year ► Unemployment nears 15 per cent

PETER MORRISON/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Tens of thousands of Irish people are leaving their debt-shattered land because they can't find work. But one frustrated job-hunter, 26-year-old Feilim Mac An Iomaire, has refused — and captured the nation's imagination with an inventive PR stunt that highlights his plight.

"Save me from emigration," reads Mac An Iomaire's billboard in the heart of Dublin, the focal point for a novel social media-driven campaign that advertises his 10-month search for work and desire to stay in Ireland.

The effort has cost him about 2,000 euro ($2,896), and given him a priceless global spotlight for his skills as a marketer and deal-maker.

Barely two days after re-branding himself as an Irish everyman named Jobless Paddy, Mac An Iomaire appears certain to have achieved his goal of landing a good job by the end of the month.

Between seemingly endless calls, tweets and Facebook posts from well-wishers and tipsters, the commerce and marketing graduate of National

University of Ireland at Galway put on his best jacket Thursday for the first of potentially dozens of job interviews in the coming few weeks. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

COURT MEDIATION

No resolution in Target name dispute

U.S. retailer Target Corp. and Canada's Fairweather Ltd. have failed to reach a settlement in a legal dispute over who has the right to use the Target name in Canada after a mediation session in Federal Court.

Justice Roger Hughes filed documents Thursday after meeting with both parties together and separately, saying no settlement could be reached and no arrangements were made for the two sides to meet again.

U.S. Target is awaiting a verdict on its request for an injunction to block the company that owns the Fairweather womenswear chain from using the name "Target Apparel" in its stores.

Clothing chain Fairweather Ltd., which has owned the Canadian rights to the name for 10 years, filed its own lawsuit seeking up to $250 million in damages from Target for trademark infringement.

The web is a groom's best friend

Brides still wear traditional white gowns, but some of their grooms are doing something rather non-traditional — buying diamond engagement rings online.

As shopping becomes increasingly digital, even the highly personal experience of shopping for an engagement ring has gone online and men are embracing it.

"Guys know what they want," said John Marusenko, president of online diamond dealer Canada Diamonds in Vancouver, who added that 60 to 70 per cent of his clients are men. "You're in control of the process...."

You can find exactly what you're looking for within your means," Marusenko said, of men's buying habits.

But Marusenko and diamond industry experts say buying a diamond on the Internet means it must have a certificate issued with it from a recognized organization that grades the size, colour, clarity and cut.

"With a strong certificate you know exactly what you're going to get," Marusenko said.

Canada Diamonds, like its name, sells only Canadian diamonds.

Each diamond sold by the Vancouver company comes with a certificate saying it's from Canada's arctic and a diamond grading certificate, from the Gemological Institute of America (GIA), Marusenko said.

Ran Cohen, president of Diamond.ca, said online diamond shopping is open 24-7 and means savings and more choices for consumers.

"The need to cut off the middle man was clear, and the Internet provided that opportunity," said Cohen.

THE CANADIAN PRESS

Engaging online

Both prestigious and big-box retailers have also turned to the web to help sell diamonds.

► Tiffany & Co., Birks and Harry Winston shoppers can browse diamond engagement rings online.

► Zales and Peoples also sell diamonds online, said Gemological Institute of America's Russell Shor who is in Carlsbad, near San Diego.

► Online sales are six to seven per cent of retail diamond sales and that includes a lot of traditional jewellers who use the web to sell, he said.

► Diamond prices can be cheaper online, but Shor warns consumers to steer clear of prices that seem too good to be true.

► "The paramount thing for anyone to remember is that there is no sort of shortcut to cheap diamonds," Shor said.

Google likes +1 button

► +1 feature similar to Facebook's 'Like' button, a staple on websites

Google Inc. is hoping other websites will like its recently introduced system for recommending online content and ads.

The Internet search leader has been using a "+1" recommendation button on its own site for two months. It became available to other publishers Wednesday.

Pressing the +1 button enables people to recommend an article, photo, product, video or song.

The personal endorsement also says something about an individual's interests and preferences. That's something both Google and Facebook want to know more about so they can do a better job placing the online ads that generate most of their revenue. Facebook is gaining valuable insights as people increasingly spend more of their time on its website sharing their thoughts, photos and links. It's a troubling trend for Google because much of the information posted by Facebook's more than 500 million users can't be indexed by Google's search engine.

EDUCATION FOR THE REAL WORLD

DIVERSITY ON ICE IS THE CANUCK WAY

THE METRO LIST

PAUL SULLIVAN
METRO

This week, a nation gets its game back.

1 Hockey Night in CANADA: After years of putting up with Stanley Cup finals in Carolina (home of hockey ...) or Philadelphia, this year, Vancouver is the home team. The last time a Canadian team played in the Stanley Cup was 2007, but the last Canadian team to win it all was Montreal in 1993. Of course, Vancouver's three stars are two Swedes and an American, but who cares?! It's the Canadian way: Diversity in end-to-end action!

2 Speaking of hockey, how about Winnipeg? First, it gets its own edition of Metro and now it's back in the NHL, baby. Talk about a winning streak. The Heart of the Continent does indeed have a pulse, and it's beating stronger than ever. Bring back the Golden Jet to drop the first puck on a new era at the MTS Centre! Randy Carlyle, at least.

3 The Children's Crusade: And speaking of hearts, yours would have to be made of stone not to melt at the sight of cute little kids around the Middle East

Marching to remember Hamza al-Khatib, the 13-year-old Syrian boy who was tortured to death by his own government. Memo to Syrian President Bashar Assad: When your own kids start marching in the street, you know you're done, dude.

4 Kim Kardashian gets engaged: From the sublime.... This is a big deal because a nobody who does nothing has managed to turn her upcoming nuptials into front-page news around the world. Rumour has it she supplied her own engagement ring because boyfriend Kris Humphries couldn't afford all that bling on his NBA salary. LOL!

5 Cellphones could cause cancer: According to the World Health Organization, cellphones could cause brain cancer. C, I told U! IMHO, how else can you explain our mysterious loss of the capacity to spell entire words? The story was followed by an immediate denial from cellphone companies around the world. Who U gonna believe: The WHO ... or the cellphone industry?

Honourable mentions:

6 Shaquille O'Neal retires from the NBA: No more Shaq attacks.

7 Brooke Shields turned 46 this week. Yikes, anybody remember Pretty Baby?

8 Killer tornado strikes ... Massachusetts? Global warning.

9 Man attacks raccoon in Toronto: Man wins battle, but raccoon wins the war for public sympathy.

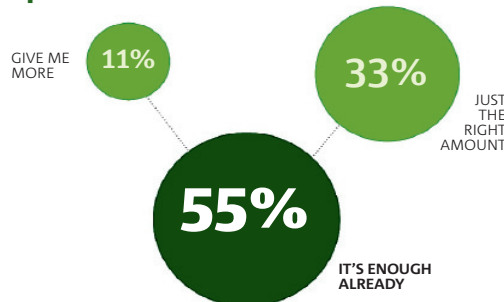

Dishonourable mention:

10 Bieber alert: Justin and Selena go on a date to the Cheesecake Factory. Justin had cherry cheesecake, his favourite. You were expecting ... what? Fine dining?

TORONTO. I'm disappointed in Metro's choice of column. Paul Sullivan is a hypocrite for criticizing Mark Zuckerberg for killing animals for his dinner while Sullivan
eats meat!

I admire Zuckerberg
for taking this step and not shying away from the reality of how meat ends up on our plates —
the animal has to be killed first.

Sullivan is coddling
and reassuring himself and meat eaters that it's OK to not think about the fact that the piece of meat they eat during meals was actually once a live animal.

Sullivan also criticizes Zuckerberg for not killing animals that he catches himself, but rather those who are caged/farmed.

Really? What have you done to put that animal on your plate? You buy already slaughtered,
nicely cut up and pack-

Then he makes a snide comment at the end of the article. Sulli-

Not the same effect as a blackboard

A Malaysian social activist will apologize 100 times on Twitter in an unusual settlement with a magazine publisher in a defamation case, his lawyer said Thursday.

The penalty has sparked debate among Internet users about the pitfalls of social media in Malaysia, where authorities have warned people to be more cautious about what they write on blogs, Facebook and Twitter.

Fahmi Fadzil, an opposition politician's aide and respected commentator on social issues, claimed on Twitter in January that his pregnant friend had been poorly treated by her employers at a magazine run by BluInc Media.

Fahmi wrote an apology to BluInc on Twitter a few hours after making that allegation, but the company's lawyers later sent him a letter demanding unspecified financial damages for defamation and another apology in major newspapers, said Fahmi's lawyer, Syahredzan Johan.

Syahredzan said Fahmi settled the case this week by agreeing to apologize 100 times over three days on Twitter, where he has more than 4,200
followers. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Plot synopsis

From concentration camps in Poland to a mansion in Westchester, N.Y., X-Men: First Class details the evolution of the mutant band of X-Men (and Women). We learn how the two most powerful mutants, Eric Lehnsherr/Magneto (Michael Fassbender) and Professor Charles Xavier (James McAvoy) get along long enough to put together a team of mutants, but soon find themselves on opposite sides in a game of free-to-be-you-and-me.

A First Class triumph

- Richard Crouse and Mark Breslin debate the merits of X-Men: First Class
- Story, dialogue and great acting lifts movie above standard superhero fare

Richard Crouse: Mark, X-Men: The Youngins has its share of things that go boom but it doesn't follow the summer blockbuster format. There aren't action sequences every 10 minutes, the characters actually talk to one another and there's even subtitles! What a relief. After the heavy metal bombast of Thor and the like, X-Men is more like a Radiohead disc — brainy but still fun. What's your take?

Mark Breslin: I've always thought the X-Men franchise was the brainiest of the comic book movies. But this one exceeds all expectations. Setting it in 1962 and weaving real-world events — like the Cuban Missile Crisis — into the plot was a stroke of brilliance. Although ... the setting may be '62 but the hemlines are definitely '67!

RC: The setting may be '62 and the hemlines '67, but the themes are definitely 2011. One quote in particular, "Security is more important than liberty," adds to that some groovy space age design, and Kevin Bacon as best bad guy of the summer so far, and you have a great example of how big blockbuster entertainment can entertain the eye (thank you January Jones and Jennifer Lawrence) and the mind.

MB: January Jones looks great in Barbarella drag, but I still maintain she can't act. But the rest of the cast sure can. James McAvoy brings great humanity — and a great collection of tweed jackets — to his role as a young Professor X. Michael Fassbender seethes as the Holocaust-haunted Magneto. But a clever cameo by a major star beats them all with one succinct and unprintable line. The rest of the film is talky, but it's mostly good dialogue, except for the constant reminders that "we're all outsiders, blah-blah-blah."

RC: It is a bit talkier than you might expect from a big budget comic book movie, but at least they're saying something. It isn't just chatter. I think the reason this movie works so well is that it has the best of both worlds, good blow-'em-up, great villains, cool characters and a script that respects all of the above. If they wanted to make it less chatty, I suppose they could cut some of January Jones's lines. One thing is for sure, acting is not her super power.

MB: I also liked some of the director's '60s touches, like the split screen effects that I haven't seen since The Thomas Crowne Affair — the first one.

Abrams' pal Grunberg shows up in Super 8

Greg Grunberg is revealing that he has a small role in Super 8, the latest film from his longtime friend J.J. Abrams.

Grunberg previously said only that he'd beg for a part in the film. But he told The Associated Press on Wednesday that people will have to "really, really search to find me" as he portrays a sitcom actor in Super 8.

Grunberg and Abrams have been friends since kindergarten. Grunberg starred in Abrams' home movies growing up and has appeared in most of his professional films and TV shows, including Felicity, Alias, Lost and Star Trek.

Grunberg says of Abrams: "He calls me his lucky charm."

Grunberg stars in the comedy Love Bites, which premieres on NBC Thursday at 10 p.m. Eastern.

Super 8 star not growing up too fast

► 15-year-old Ryan Lee stars in the new J.J. Abrams thriller ► Actor knows the importance of secrets ► Didn't even know what movie he was trying out for

SCENE@METRONWS.CA

Who says kid actors can't have normal childhoods? During a phone interview with Ryan Lee, the 15-year-old Super 8 star, he briefly interrupts our chat to act like a youngster. "I just saw a stray dog and I'm trying to catch him right now. What was your question again?"

I had just asked the Austin, Texas native about working with director J.J. Abrams, the megamind behind TV and movie hits like Lost and Star Trek.

"He's just one of those guys who can really make you feel comfortable during a scene," said Ryan. "He's really good at what he does. He's really hands on, down to earth and just an amazing director all round."

Like all of Abrams' projects, the plot of Super 8 has been kept under wraps. Ryan plays one of six kids who witness a mysterious train wreck. "Then everything starts to go crazy," he says, picking up the story. "Once we get away things start to go weird in the town; like people going missing, dogs going missing, home appliances going missing. Nothing can really be explained!"

Other than that he's been sworn to secrecy. "Once I got the call back I had to sign confidentiality papers," he says. "I had to bring them home to my family and they had to sign them too. It was really secretive."

So secretive he didn't know what he was auditioning for when he first went out for the part.

"My agent sent me on the audition and I had no idea it was for J.J. or for Super 8," he says. "The audition was about a girl and a boy fighting about math homework. It had nothing to do with Super 8. Then at the first audition with him this girl next to me said, 'J.J.'s waiting.' I said, 'J.J. who?' Her mouth dropped. I had no idea he was going to be working on this."

Working with Abrams,

he says, was a breeze. "He never yells and with a group of six kids ..." Ryan said. "Not yelling? How do you even do that?"

There's a great buzz around Super 8 right now, even Ryan feels it — "I want to see the movie so bad, just like everybody else," he says — but right now in the days before the movie opens it's back to being a kid and catching that dog.

"I'm trying," he says. "He's fast."

Greenwood taps into his dark side

► Canadian actor says he wasn't ready for how scary it would be filming Cell 213 ► Movie was filmed at a closed down prison in Guelph, Ontario

TREVOR PARKER

SCENE@METRONEWS.CA

The new supernatural thriller Cell 213 oozes with creepy atmosphere. Filmed on location at the now-decommissioned Guelph Correctional Centre, it's the story of a hotshot defence attorney (Eric Balfour) locked down in a decaying penitentiary and plagued by nightmarish visions.

The movie also marks the return of Boogeyman director Stephen Kay to the horror genre after a six-year absence. Metro got the chance to chat with three of the film's co-stars about their stretch behind bars: venerable Canadian Bruce Greenwood (The Sweet Hereafter), newcomer Deborah Valente, and Michael Rooker (Henry: Portrait of a Serial Killer).

"I play the warden of a prison that is singularly peculiar in that one of the cells, number 213, is essentially a holding cell between heaven and hell," Greenwood says about his role.

Rooker portrays the warden's thuggish sidekick, a guard who "does whatever my boss tells me to do," Rooker says with an ominous smile. "I control the guy inside 213, making sure he does what he's told."

Valente plays "a government official working on a case regarding excessive force and suicides taking place at the prison."

With Rooker already having made his bones in horror over the years, Greenwood and Valente were excited for their own chance to chill viewers' blood.

"I'm not that familiar with the genre," says Greenwood. "I haven't been in that many movies dealing with the horrific. I wasn't aware how spooky and weird the finished project was going to feel, even though we were shooting in this wet, dark, hideous, enclosed, oppressive prison. While as an actor you absorb that to some degree, I wasn't ready for how scary this film ended up being."

It takes you on a roller coaster, and that's the fun about making a movie like this, letting the audience go with you on the ride," says Valente.

"A roller coaster where the ceilings are low," Rooker adds. "Just remember to duck."

James Blake hits the circuit

► He took the booming bass of dubstep, melded it with minimal songwriting ► Up next: eight music festivals

PAT HEALY
SCENE@METRONews.CA
METRO WORLD NEWS IN BOSTON

James Blake says he's looking forward to playing the eight festivals that he's booked to play this summer, including Glastonbury, the Pitchfork Music Festival and San Miguel Primavera Sound in Spain.

But during Blake's 22 years of growing up in London, he didn't actually go to that many. The pianist and singer, who incorporates a dubstep sound, says he attended the Exit Festival once, but didn't spend much time looking at the stage.

"If the music is good, I can have an amazing time, but not even necessarily related to that music," he says. "It gives you the space to have a laugh in, but you know that if all else fails, you can just go and listen to some really good music."

You're playing so many different festivals this summer. And I first saw you at the SXSW festival in Texas. Do you ever get to check out any of the other acts?

There are some people I'm really excited to see. I was fascinated by Odd Future at SXSW. To me, it looked like that festival kind of broke them. They did really well to show people what they can do. I saw them twice. The second time it took me a while to get in. It was like ridiculous hype, to the point that I don't think I've ever seen before.

Well, some might argue that the hype surrounding you comes close.

I just think it's a different kind of hype. It's gone at different speeds and I think they're burning at a different temperature.

It has been interesting to watch the online thermometer, so to speak. There was the hype and then there was the backlash...

I loved the backlash. It was really cool.

Oh yeah? Why?

Because once the backlash

"Once the backlash happened, there was a backlash against the backlash."

BLAKE

happened, there was a backlash against the backlash, and it was really interesting to see. To be honest though, I'm not really part of it. I think that's what I've liked about it.

Are you saying you don't have a Google Alert with your name?

(Laughs) I don't think anyone can say they've never done that, but I think it just matters so little to the creation of music what 6 million Internet people think that it didn't really bother me too much. But from what people told me, for every negative thing that was written, there were about 100 positive things.

How different is your new work?

I think it's getting more outward. I've come quite a long way, personally and musically in the last year or so. I've had a lot of new experiences, I've been to a lot of new places, I've met a lot of new people and listened to a lot of new music. That's what touring does. I think my music has kind of developed. I think it's better? I don't know.

When I saw you play live I was really blown away by how deep your bass sound is. When did you first realize its power?

In London, in several clubs that I went to that were ► Believe it or not, this is James Blake happy.

just playing dubstep and grime and some garage as well. But it was mainly dubstep, because dubstep just harnessed that power that dub had. It harnessed that sort of sub-bass pressure and just made it a bit more snappy, I think.

When you first started writing songs for your album, did you know that you wanted that to be an element of your sound?

It wasn't really an epiphany as much as an odd process of making a song. With (Feist cover) Limit to Your Love I just recorded the song and then I was writing a beat alongside it, but not related to it, and thought, 'Well, maybe these things go together. They're at a similar tempo. Maybe I could just put a beat under that and see how it sounds.'

There are so few lyrics in your songs. After performing them over and over for the past year, do you find that you're ... Bored?

No, I wasn't going to say that, I swear. Do you find you get something entirely different out of the few words?

I love it, actually, because singing something that is so distilled means that you have to really care about it while you're singing it.

Coming full Circuital

► Always searching, Jim James leads My Morning Jacket on new journey

Jim James is on a spiritual quest of sorts, and you're invited to listen in.

The My Morning Jacket frontman sat in the prayer room of a church in a quiet neighbourhood of his hometown last month, talking about old records, religion, philosophy and his perpetual yearning for understanding. These things colour the Kentucky quintet's much-anticipated new album, Circuital, and James says the record reflects a search he's been on for some time.

"I just want to be peaceful," James said. "I just want to find peace. I don't want to be questioning anymore. I don't want to be searching anymore."

Don't get James wrong. He understands he's living the life millions dream of as the head of an increasingly important and influential rock band. That part of his life is great. James is looking for solace in other places as well, however. He jokingly calls himself a recovering Catholic and says he's given up on organized religion. He's now seeking comfort from other sources.

"There's so much stuff that you just don't need in your brain that they hammered there so young and you're trying-ing to deal with it," James said. "I don't consider myself any faith. I just try to listen to all faiths and all ideas and sift out what I believe and what I don't."

Increasingly James is finding answers in music. Long a rock 'n' roll fan, he started to grow uninterested and turned to different forms of music to feed his need for new sounds.

His discovery of soul music has influenced his own music over the last five years. More important, it's opened his mind about the possibilities of life.

► Bob Dylan is one of many legendary rockers who were born in the early 1940s.

AN AGE OF YOUNG ENLIGHTENMENT

SOUND CHECK

ALAN CROSS
SCENE
@METRONEWS.CA

One of the many great pleasures that come with travelling abroad is the opportunity to sit back and read foreign newspapers. As I made my way back to Paris to connect with the Eurostar to London, I read an article in the International Herald Tribune that started by congratulating Bob Dylan on his 70th birthday on May 24.

But then the author, David Hajdu, a journalism professor at Columbia University, pointed out an interesting fact: Dylan was far from the only legendary rocker turning 70 in the next 18 months. John Lennon would have hit 70 last October. George Clinton, Joan Baez and Paul Simon will reach 70 by the end of the year. In 2012, Paul McCartney, Lou Reed, Brian Wilson and Aretha Franklin will all hit that milestone. And were Jimi Hendrix and Jerry Garcia still with us, they'd enter their eighth decade, too.

Coincidence? Not really. All these performers were born in 1941 and 1942, which means they were 14 when they first heard Elvis in 1955 and 1956.

Think back to when you were that age. It was an era of constant discovery, a time when something new about the world revealed itself every day if not every hour. Everything was a wonder and you were open to anything. As you entered the ninth grade, hormones ran amuck, emotional reactions were strong and much of what you experienced at that magical age became imprinted upon you for the rest of your life. Including music.

Now imagine it's 1955. Previous generations didn't have the concept of being a teenager. But in the post-war years — the first years of the Baby Boom — the special social construct, a new developmental framework of teenagerism was invented.

Along with that came the new sounds of rock 'n' roll, delivered by a new invention called the transistor radio.

Together, rock and radio acted as a Trojan Horse for demographic, social, economic, political and sexual revolution that changed the world.

Imagine a 14-year-old Robert Zimmerman hearing Elvis That's All Right Mama after class in Hibbing, Minnesota.

Or Lou Reed tuning a late-night rock 'n' roll station from New York.

Full of dreams, impressionable and inspired, they decided to make this music their life's work.

It must have been a magical time for them.

And we're all richer for it.

► Honolulu native Tia Carrere has come a long way since playing rock singer Cassandra on Wayne's World

Tia Carrere has found success in movies, TV and the music world. But there's one project the diverse performer likely won't be tackling anytime soon: a reality show about her life.

"Having all of these — quote — 'reality' shows where cameras follow you around and that sort of thing? I just think it creates a slow erosion of our sense of well-being," the Relic Hunter star said in a telephone interview with The Canadian Press.

"We feel like we have to live a more glamorous life and there's something wrong with our reality. The average viewer doesn't realize that those things are the furthest thing from reality," she added.

"It's like the Don Henley song Dirty Laundry. Everyone wants to see. They're scripted for drama, for conflict, for marketing. It's not reality. So don't compare your reality to it and think there's something wrong where you are."

You can take it from the tone of her remarks that she will not be following the example of some other stars and looking for her own reality show, although she was a contestant on ABC's Dancing with the Stars.

"There are things I could be doing right now but do I want to do a reality show? No. Sometimes taking just anything that comes along isn't the best choice."

Back to the music

These days Carrere is living in Los Angeles and focusing on her first love — music.

► She has recorded four CDs has won two Grammy Awards in the now discontinued category of best Hawaiian music album.

► "It's soul put into sound. I started out singing. I never wanted to be an actress which is the weirdest thing. I always wanted to be a singer and that's how I express myself best is by singing," said Carrere.

► "We're actually looking to do an English language record next," she adds.

Rookies in office?

Here's a nutty idea for a TV show. A slacker dude, with zero political experience, decides on a whim to run for political office.

And to the shock of his buddies back at the local bar — not to mention the electorate — he wins.

No, it's not a pilot based on the recent NDP federal election wins by a posse of Quebec university students-turned-members of parliament.

It's Dan for Mayor, back for a second season — finally — on CTV. The sitcom returns Sunday, as well as June 10 on The Comedy Network.

If the producers had pitched the unlikely storyline that actually took place during the last federal election, "we would have been laughed out of the room," says Dan for Mayor executive producer Mark Farrell.

"Sometimes you can't write it as funny as it is in real life."

DAN FOR MAYOR EXECUTIVE PRODUCER MARK FARRELL ON MP RUTH ELLEN BROSEAU'S WIN

He says he and fellow executive producers Paul Mather and Kevin White felt they were already pushing things with the high concept premise of their series: in a desperate ploy to impress a girl, small-town bartender Dan Phillips (played by Corner Gas grad Fred Ewanuick) runs for mayor of a small Ontario town and somehow stumbles into office.

A reach, perhaps, but not as far fetched as the real-life saga of MP Ruth Ellen Brosseau, the former bar manager who managed to win her Quebec riding even though she vacationed in Las Vegas during the election campaign, is not fluent in French and never once visited her riding before her surprise win.

"Sometimes you can't write it as funny as it is in real life," says Farrell.

Brosseau's win even has Dan for Mayor star Ewanuick shaking his head. Should she win a second term, he notes, Brosseau will qualify for a big, fat, MP pension for life.

"Geez," says the low-key actor. "I went into the wrong racket."

From tweet to novel

► Inspiration for Caissie St. Onge's new vampire book came from Twitter

NATASHA LEVINGER
SCENE@METRONWS.CA

What started out as funny banter on Twitter became the inspiration for television writer Caissie St. Onge's first young-adult novel, Jane Jones: Worst. Vampire. Ever.

"I was on Twitter making fun of vampire movies and TV shows," remembers St. Onge.

"I said that if you were a teenager who suddenly became a vampire in real life it would be dreadful. It would make you even more different and an outsider, and with my luck I would be blood-intolerant."

With that tweet, her novel was born. And while the protagonist is indeed an ageless blood-intolerant teenage vampire, Jane Jones reads more like a humorous coming-of-age novel than a Twilight rip-off.

This was St. Onge's intention all along.

"The vampire part is the hook, but it's not just about that. It's about a girl and her relationship to her family and peers and finding people that you fit in with," she says.

To capture that unique angst, St. Onge channelled her own awkward high school years.

"I remember my teenage years very clearly; feeling trapped and wanting so many things. In the case of Jane Jones, she is stuck and is never going to get beyond this period in her life unless something really drastic happens," she says.

Unlike many current young-adult novels which are so serious and heavy, Jane Jones is funny; St. Onge cultivated her humour as the assistant to such greats as David Letterman and Rosie O'Donnell. She especially credits

"I felt like the vampire part is the hook, but it's not just about that. It's about a girl and her relationship to her family and peers and finding people that you fit in with."

AUTHOR CAISSIE ST. ONGE, ON JANE JONES

O'Donnell with cultivating her talent.

"She always introduced me as a writer," St. Onge says.

"It made me understand that just because you're not drawing a paycheck for your writing doesn't mean that you're not a writer. If you're writing things, that makes you one."

Watson, Dan Savage, among Webby honourees

The Jeopardy-playing IBM computer Watson has been named person of the year by the Webby Awards.

The Webbys, which honour Internet achievement, announced their special honourees Thursday.

The recently disbanded rock group LCD Soundsystem was chosen artist of the year. The band presented their final concert at Madison Square Garden in a live webcast in April.

It Gets Better Project founder Dan Savage will be honoured for special achievement. Savage's online video campaign has urged young people to stand up to bullying against lesbian, bisexual, gay and transgender teens.

Director Adam McKay and Chris Henchy, co-founders of the comedy website Funny or Die, will be honoured as film and video person of the year. In the earlier-announced Webby winners, Funny or Die led with a total of nine awards. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

From Friends to frenemies?

► Reported 'tension' brewing between Aniston, Cox

Former Friends co-stars Jennifer Aniston and Courteney Cox may be on their way to being former friends in real life, according to Popeater.

Sources say the actresses no longer hang out as frequently as they used to and haven't been photographed together in nearly a year.

Plus, one source adds, there is "tension" between the two over Cox's behaviour since her separation from David Arquette and rumoured fling with Cougar Town co-star Brian Van Holt.

"Jen thinks Courteney is acting callous by running around with this guy but refusing to file divorce papers. Like she's playing mind games with David," the source says. Aniston's rep, however, tells E! Online the story is "a complete fabrication."

Now Timberlake is said to be spending quality time with Ashley Olsen, according to Hollyscoop.

"They're really trying to keep it on the down-low."

Phillippe, Seyfried off again: Report

BREAK UP. After seven months of on-again, off-again dating, Amanda Seyfried and Ryan Phillippe have reportedly called it quits once again — and this time for good, according to Us Weekly.

But from what sources say, the split was hardly a rough one. "They were always seeing other people," a source tells the magazine. "There's no bad blood. They're cool."

FATHER-SON. While Taylor Lautner is trying to transition from Twilight heartthrob to action star with his upcoming film choices, he won't be doing it with publicity firm Slate PR by his side, as the company reportedly dropped Lautner as a client after just three months, according to the Hollywood Reporter.

The reason for the split? Lautner's father and producing partner, Daniel Lautner, "isn't the easiest guy to work with" and proved to be too involved in the young actor's career choices.

Kravitz wears the pants in this one

X-Men: First Class co-stars Michael Fassbender and Zoe Kravitz have been turning heads in New York lately as the pair reportedly can't keep their hands off each other, according to Us Weekly.

In fact, sources say, the two actors reportedly began dating during production on their film last year but have been keeping the romance under wraps.

"They're really low-key, but they have a great time together just talking music or movies.

"They really didn't want to be a topic of conversation during the press for X-Men," a source says, adding that Kravitz tends to wear the pants in the relationship.

"For how good looking and smart he is, Michael's pretty shy. She is actually the one taking care of him most the time. She really respects his talent."

No ice-cream maker? No problem

► This simple malted ice cream takes just 15 minutes to make

This ice cream is made without the need for an ice-cream maker.

So if you haven't bought one — or don't have the space for one — this luscious and super-rich frozen treat is the perfect thing for you.

We opted for an old-fashioned malt flavour, but you can leave that out if you'd prefer plain vanilla.

If you want to make chocolate, simply whisk 75 ml (1/3 cup) cocoa powder into the cream.

You also can freeze the mixture in individual dishes if you like.

Easy Malted Ice Cream

Preparation:

- 1 In a large bowl, whisk half of the sugar with egg yolks. Set aside.
- 2 In a large saucepan over medium heat, combine cream, malted milk powder, salt and remaining sugar. Bring to a simmer.
- 3 Once cream mixture is hot, while whisking eggs pour cream slowly into bowl of eggs. Stir in vanilla.
- 4 Refrigerate mixture until completely chilled, about 4 hours.

Ingredients:

- 300 ml (1 1/4 cups) sugar, divided
- 9 egg yolks
- 1 l (4 cups) heavy cream
- 175 ml (3/4 cup) malted milk powder
- Pinch of salt
- 15 ml (1 tbsp) vanilla extract

5 When mixture is completely chilled, beat with an electric mixer until thick, 8 to 10 minutes. Transfer to a freezer-safe, airtight container and freeze until firm, at least 4 hours. Enjoy within 3 days.

Wow with your wedding wine

PETER ROCKWELL
LIQUIDASSETS@EASTLINK.CA
TWITTER: @THEREALWINEGUY

While planning a wedding is no piece of cake, I admit that I only had two responsibilities during the organization of my nuptials: Select the wine for the reception and stay out of the way.

With dozens of thirsts to quench, what you really want is the biggest bottle filled with the tastiest juice for the least money. When it comes to size, the selection of wines in 1.5-litre bottles is varied with the majority of vintage versions offering good value for the price.

Concha y Toro's Frontera line from Chile is one of the most consistent, with the white 2010 Sauvignon Blanc ($13.95 - $20.49) offering fresh, lean, citrusy fruit flavours and the red 2010 Cabernet Sauvignon Merlot ($14.95 - $20.49) serving up ripe, wild berry fruit and balanced acidity.

In the end, though, realize that most guests will only have one glass during dinner. The majority will be watching the clock waiting for the cash bar to open and won't remember much about the wine the day after.

PRICES REFLECT THE RANGE ACROSS CANADA. SOME PRODUCTS MAY NOT BE AVAILABLE IN ALL PROVINCES.

Edible bowls

Edible bowls are a terrific way to show off ice cream. They are also a great way to kick an ice-cream sundae bar up to the next level.

Because these bowls are made from a sweet, crisp shell, you could use them for other desserts as well.

Li through to French Open final

Li Na is back in a Grand Slam final, reaching her second straight major championship match by defeating Maria Sharapova 6-4, 7-5 Thursday in the French Open semifinals.

The Australian Open runner-up, who became the first Chinese player to reach a Grand Slam final, was able to chase down nearly everything Sharapova had to offer on Court Philippe Chatrier.

"I'm sure they showed the match ... in China, so ... maybe children, they saw the match, and they think that maybe one day they can do the same — or even better," said Li, who is the first Chinese player to reach the French

Open final.

In Saturday's final, Li will face defending champion Francesca Schiavone. The fifth-seeded Schiavone, who last year became the first Italian woman to win a Grand Slam singles title, defeated No. 11 Marion Bartoli of France 6-3, 6-3.

- ▶ Nowitzki undeterred by injury
- ▶ NBA finals even heading to Dallas

Dirk Nowitzki and the Dallas Mavericks put a stunning end to their misery in Miami.

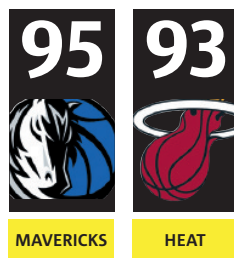

Now they have a chance to win their first NBA title without ever coming back to South Florida.

Nowitzki made the tie-breaking layup with 3.6 seconds left, and the Mavericks roared back from 15 points down in the fourth quarter to beat the Heat 95-93 on Thursday night and tied the NBA final at one game apiece.

Capping a furious rally by scoring Dallas's final nine points, Nowitzki's final two baskets were left-handed — despite a torn tendon on that non-shooting hand. He finished with 24 points.

Dwyane Wade had 36 points for Miami, but his desperation three-pointer was off at the buzzer.

Seemingly out of the game when the Heat led 88-73 with 7:15 remaining, Dallas held the Heat to just one field goal from there. A three-pointer by Mario Chalmers with 24.5 seconds left tied it just two seconds after a Nowitzki three made it 93-90.

But after a timeout, Jason Kidd ran the clock down before getting the ball to Nowitzki, who drove into the lane, spun back to the left and made the layup.

Jason Terry fuelled the comeback with a couple of jumpers and finished with 16 points. Shawn Marion had 20 points for the Mavericks, who had lost four straight finals games in Miami since taking a 2-0 lead in the 2006 series. LeBron James scored 20 points for the Heat.

Games 3, 4 and 5 will be played in Dallas.

THIS DATE IN BASEBALL

1918 — Dutch Leonard of the Boston Red Sox pitched his second no-hitter, blanking the Detroit Tigers 5-0.

1932 — Lou Gehrig became the first American League player to hit four home runs in a game, helping the New York Yankees beat the Philadelphia A's 20-13. The event was overshadowed by the resignation of John McGraw as manager of the New York Giants.

1954 — Henry Thompson of the New York Giants hit three home runs and drove in eight runs in a 13-8 win against the St. Louis Cardinals. Willie Mays drove in the other five runs with two homers.

1971 — Ken Holtzman of the Chicago Cubs pitched his second no-hitter, beating the Cincinnati Reds 1-0.

1978 — Dave Johnson became the first major leaguer to hit two pinch-hit grand slams in a season. His grand slam in the ninth inning gave the Philadelphia Phillies a 5-1 victory over the Los Angeles Dodgers.

1989 — Los Angeles and Houston played 22 innings at the Astrodom in the longest night game in National League history — 7 hours, 14 minutes. The Astros won the game on Rafael Ramirez's RBI single off Jeff Hamilton, normally the Dodgers' third baseman. When the game ended, Fernando Valenzuela was playing first and Eddie Murray was at third.
